(TNI) continues to shine as a beacon of hope, fostering trust and unity among local communities. On Saturday, November 23, 2024, the Task Forces of the Infantry Battalion 6 Marines under the HABEMA Operational Command demonstrated their commitment to peace and development during a Social Communication (Komsos) activity in Kokamu Village, Dekai District, Yahukimo Regency.

Led by Major Tirta, the Marines from the PJPR Post combined their routine patrols with meaningful interactions with Kokamu residents. The initiative aimed to build a bridge of trust and cooperation, reinforcing the TNI's mission of accelerating development in Papua.

A Warm Connection Amid Patrol Duties

As the Marines traversed Kokamu Village, they paused to engage with residents, exchanging updates and fostering camaraderie. The villagers, in turn, welcomed the Soldiers with open arms, sharing that their village remains peaceful and secure.

In a touching gesture of solidarity, the Marines distributed food packages, bringing smiles to families like Mama Maria Tabuni's. "Thank you, Commander Marines. God bless," said Mama Maria, her heartfelt words echoing the gratitude of many. Such moments highlight the profound human connection that can flourish even amidst security operations.

Leadership That Inspires Hope

Commander of the Task Forces, Lieutenant Colonel Rismanto Manurung, has consistently emphasized the importance of supporting local communities. "Our presence is not just about ensuring security but also about uplifting the lives of those we serve," he said.

This sentiment was echoed by Brigadier General Lucky Avianto, Commander of HABEMA Operational Command, who lauded the Marines' efforts. "This initiative is a testament to TNI's dedication to inclusive engagement and its unwavering support for Papua's development. Such connections are the cornerstone of a brighter future for the region," he affirmed.

Forging Unity for a Brighter Future

The Social Communication initiative not only strengthened the relationship between the TNI and Kokamu residents but also reaffirmed the role of the armed forces as partners in development. By listening to the needs and concerns of the community, the Marines are shaping operations that reflect the true spirit of collaboration and care.

The smiles, gratitude, and mutual respect exchanged in Kokamu Village exemplify the power of unity in creating a harmonious and resilient society. As the TNI continues its mission, such efforts promise to leave a lasting legacy of peace and progress in Papua.
